

TRACK 17 - SUGAR OVERLOAD [7m27s]

GAWAIN MORRISON

A 1970's style Open University TV lecture, and the presenter is resplendent with browns, cords, flares, long hair, and working in a minimal set ... except for the parts of his experiment that he's about to work on that are laid out before him on the counter.

We go through the motions of building an uber set of headphones, with the equations on the board behind him.

Once he has completed his headphones, he puts them on, plugs them into the amp, and hits play on the tape deck.

Suddenly he's whisked off ... To where and to do what are still in development, as my original concept was for something that was about 3 minutes long. I would like to incorporate the other Men In Speedos & Penny Nixon who did the vocals n this track.

I would also like to have one of the cult leaders being chased down the road by a load of his followers, perhaps throwing fish & bread at Jesus - this will be in the background as the lecturer is dandering down the street.

REQUIRED:

A 'modded' set of head phones; parts for the modded headphones, so that they can be stuck together; an Open University set - perhaps a room in Queens somewhere - something like an old chemistry lab; old amp; old tape player; old tapes; bearded man in 70's clothing; equations drawn on blackboard; jesus & followers; bread & fish

One camera shoot. Probably a 2 day shoot.
